"Memories of the Monster"

By now you know that Lucas Bishop—former cop, renegade X-Man—refuses to rest until he's killed the so-called "mutant messiah." But do you know why? To answer that question you have to look into Bishop's past. .which actually means jumping 50 years into the future, when his parents barely escaped a nuclear holocaust, only to land in the most brutal "mutant relocation" camp in the world. There, a young Bishop first heard the horror stories about the green-eyed monster that ushered in the the downfall of mutantkind, and swore vengeance – embarking on a life-long, time-hopping mission that begins here, in this special three-part mini-series. You haven't heard the "Messiah Complex" story until you've heard Bishop's side of the story...

"SIX HOURS TO KILL, PART 2: FIELD DAY"

W.C. Fields once mused that he'd rather be dead than play Philadelphia. Well, if you cross paths with Frank Castle, you'll be able to have it both ways. Castle has been injected with a slow-acting poison that will kill him in less than hours—but don't think he's going to spend them moping around. As long as blood is still pumping through his rock-hard veins, the Punisher plans on killing as many dirtbags as possible. But the Philadelphia underworld isn't going to roll over so easily. Neither is the top-secret black bag ops unit that dosed Frank. And don't forget the Mayor of Philadelphia, who only sees one way of saving his already-shaky political career: killing Frank way before his six hours are up.
